Bedstead

It Was a Valuable Heirloom.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Flora, here is a letter from Chesley, your Uncle William's lawyer, and he has inclosed a copy of the will. 'Did he leave it to me?' 'Of course he did. Don't be foolish, my dear, listen.' 'My Uncle William, being of sound mind, etc., do give and bequeath to my grand-niece, Isabel Gray, her heirs and assigns forever, my Sheraton sideboard and the sum of $200; to my grand-nephew, Flora Gray Winchester, her heirs and assigns, the mahogany bedstead which stands in my own chamber and which is known as the Gargoyle bedstead, together with the sum of $1,000.' 'Where shall we put it, Harry?' interrupted Mrs. Winchester breathlessly. 'Put it? You don't expect to get it into this flat?'

"We must have it here. I wouldn't examine it there with Isabel looking on, and, besides, it is such a journey down to Richmond. Anyway you cannot spare the time to go down now, and we must examine it together. I want to get it here as soon as possible. Who knows but Isabel or some of the others might find the diary of Nancy Gray and learn the secret? My inheritance would be worthless!" Mrs. Winchester's voice trembled. "Oh, all right," said Winchester tractably. "But how the deuce you expect to get it in here? I don't quite see. It's a very large piece of furniture, isn't it?"

"Now, Harry dear," she cried, with one plump hand over his lips, "that bed must be gotten into this flat somehow! First, I will finish my letter to Mr. Chesley and let Nohah post it at once. I can hardly wait to see the bedstead, Harry, and I don't dare dream of what will be ours when the secret of the bedstead is disclosed. Do you think, dear, I was wrong not to tell Uncle William about the diary of Nancy Gray I found in the garret?" "Well, truthfully speaking, I'm afraid it wasn't treating the old gentleman quite on the square."

Two weeks afterward, while Mr. Winchester was engaged in a most important business transaction, he was summoned to the telephone.

"Yes, this is Winchester. What? Oh, the bedstead there? I can't help it—tell them to send it up tomorrow—I know it's important—the bedstead! No, I didn't speak. Yes, I will come home early. Goodbye!"

When he reached the Etruscan apartments that evening Winchester was fortified with a box of candy and a huge bunch of violets. He stopped to the elevator and pressed the button. A faint tinkle responded from some depth below.

Presently the janitor emerged from an obscure doorway and surveyed him with an unpleasant eye.

"It ain't a-runnin'," he said gruffly.
"Poor management," commented Winchester as he prepared to conquer the eight flights that barred him from home and dinner.

"Huh!" exploded the man. "What with the freight elevator outer order and people breakin' windows movin' in big stuff and them chumps a-tryin' to put the feet board in my passenger car and a-tarin' a lady's dresser and her landlord's sister-in-law!" He glared wrathfully at the vanishing form of Winchester.

Opening the door of his apartment, rampant disorder met his eye. A huge, dark form almost covered the door of the tiny parlor, which in its chaotic disturbance looked strangely unfamiliar to the master of the house.

In the library Flora reclined on a couch before the bright gas log, while sympathetic Nohah applied wet clothes to her mistress' aching head. Wear-age from the parlor impeded progress at every step.

"My dear girl!" he uttered.
She turned a woe-begone face to his.
"Such a time as they had trying to get it in the window! They were stoney because the window was too small,
and one of them pulled it in with a jerk, and it struck the chandelier—the perfect glass fell on my Wedgwood vase, and that is broken!—I—I am quite discouraged!"

With a restless glance toward the parlor, where the gigantic bedstead lay like some dark shadow on his little home, and with an unpleasant recollection of the snoring janitor below, Winchester endeavored to soothe his wife's shattered nerves, and together they obeyed Nohah's summons to a belated dinner.

At table Mrs. Winchester drew a folded paper from her gown.

"This is the page I copied from the diary of Nancy Gray, Harry," she said, spreading it open before her. "I thought I would refresh my memory as to the exact location of the secret spring."

"Richmond, Va., April 21, 1864," read Mrs. Winchester in solemn accents. "I am greatly alarmed for the safety of Grandmother Binpah's diamonds, and have vainly tried to find a hiding place for them. The Yankees are digging up every inch of ground on the adjacent plantations searching for buried treasure, and I am quite at a loss to find a safe place for our heirlooms."

"April 22.—Such an excellent idea!
I have just recollected that there is a secret hiding place in Grandmother Binpah's mahogany bedstead. I will conceal the jewels there and will describe their hiding place so that in case anything happens to me one of my family may be able to recover them, and if the bedstead should be carried away."

"First, one must observe the row of hideously grinning faces—'gargoyles,' grandfather called them—that outline the top of the headboard;
there are twenty-five of these gargoyles in all, and one must press the right eye of the thirteenth gargoyle from either end, when the face will swing outward, disclosing a cavity.
Into this cavity I have dropped the leather bag containing the unset gems they are worth many thousands of dollars—and I hope to recover them when the war is over."

Armed with hammer and screwdriver, husband and wife repaired to the parlor and locked themselves within, greatly to the disgust of the interested Nohah, who availed herself of the keyhole as the only salve to her wounded self respect.

"My dear girl, how do you think I'm going to handle this thing alone? It weighs a ton! Why wasn't it put in the guest room?"

"The instant I saw it in the wagon I knew it would never fit into that room, so I told them to put it in here.
We can remove it to the cellar afterward—or store it."

"It fits in here," remarked Winchester.

"Let us rip off the covering—I believe I know just where to place my finger on the spring! This is the headboard, of course, and here are the gargoyles!" cried Flora excitedly.

Winchester took out his knife and leisurely opened the blade. He lifted one corner of the bedstead, groaned and dropped it heavily.

There was a straining and snapping of cords as he applied his knife to the wrappings.

"Oh! Oh! I am just as nervous as I can be!" cried Flora, "regardless of my husband's groan as he dragged aside the covering and disclosed the rounded, polished top outlined by a semicircle of hideously carved faces."

"Jove, what a beauty!" ejaculated Winchester, yet with a note of respect in his tone. "What a nightmare!
Fancy wishing a guest 'pleasant dreams' and then introducing him to that couch! Whew! Now, which face, Flora, love?"

Mrs. Winchester triumphantly produced the paper from her laces and read solemnly: "The thirteenth gar-goyle from either end."

"The one in the middle, of course," announced Winchester.

"Press the right eye," quoted Mrs.
Winchester breathlessly. "I shall have them set in a glorious pendant, Harry!"

They hung expectantly over the bed.

"Now press!" she whispered sili-lantly.

Winchester pressed.

"Nothing doing," he announced flatly.

"Press harder," urged his wife. "The secret spring has probably rusted.
They do rust sometimes, don't they?"

"I never heard of one doing so. They always yield easily, and the door rolls noiselessly aside and leaves an aperture," said Winchester grimly.

"We must get it open," cried his wife tearfully. "Try some of the other eyes, Harry."

"But why try the others, my dear?
It says the middle one."

"There is—there must be a spring!"
retorted Mrs. Winchester. "Why should Nancy have put it in her diary if there was not?"

"I give it up when you ask me to explain the vagaries of the female mind!" began Winchester as he viciously jabbed the eyes of all the gargoyles in turn without result.

Flora burst into tears.

"Don't cry, my darling," comforted her husband tenderly. "I'll find out the truth if I have to chop the confounded thing into kindlings!"

"I wish I understood the meaning of it anyway," said Winchester pressently when his wife had reached a degree of tranquillity where she could nibble a bonbon appreciatively.

Again the tears flowed. "I might just as well have had another thousand dollars!" wailed Flora.

Winchester's elbow knocked a small package from the table to the floor.

"What is this?" he asked, picking it up.

"An express parcel that came this afternoon. I haven't had time to look at it."

He ripped off the covers and looked stupidly at a small leather volume in his hand.

"The Diary of Nancy Gray!" he exclaimed. A letter fell from the book, and he opened it eagerly.

"Read it!" commanded Flora impatiently. And he read as follows:

"My dear Mrs. Winchester—Your uncle, the late Mr. William Gray, has placed this little volume in my hands with instructions to turn it over to you after his death. Of course you are aware that your uncle wrote this fantastical little tale for his own amusement many years ago, but it was never published. You are probably in a position to recognize that your uncle's clever wit enabled him to take great liberties with your family history. As the present owner of the Gargoyle bedstead, this little book will prove to be of especial interest to you.
Congratulations to you on the possession of such a valuable antique, and with kind regards, I am, very sincerely yours,
"JEREMIAH CHESLEY."

The long silence was broken at last by a suppressed chuckle from Mr.
Winchester.

His wife buried her face in the sofa pillows. "Brute!" she sobbed bitterly.
And Winchester is still wondering whom she meant.

Jungle Housekeeping.

The negro housewife in the West Indian jungle finds housekeeping very easy. Fruit and vegetables grow wild all about the hut and the river abounds with fish. On wash day all she has to do is to pick a few of the berries of the soap berry tree, take her clothes to the river and use the berries as she would use ordinary soap. Even her cooking pots grow on the trees, the calabash cut in halves being used for this purpose. Calabashes are used also for bowls, basins and jugs for carrying water from the river while the small ones make excellent cups.
In the afternoon, when she is ready for her cup of tea, the negress picks half a dozen leaves from the lime bush growing at her door, boils them, squeezes the juice from a sugar cane for sweetening and the coconut supplies the milk. Thus she has a delicious cup of tea without depending on the grocer for it. She makes the mats for her floor out of the dried leaves of the banana, plaited and sewed together as the old country people in this country make their rag mats.

Not For Himself.

"It does me good to see a pompous man get his," said a stockbroker. "I have a friend who just about believes the Lord created the earth in seven days for his especial benefit. He has a fine home on Long Island, with a retinue of servants, but his wife is a semi-invalid, and it falls to the lot of Mr. Pomposus to execute various commissions for her in the city. The other day she asked him to stop at a clothing store and get a couple of white duck jackets for the butler. I happened to be with him when he entered the store. Striding majestically up to a tall, thin salesman, he said, with much impressive dignity:

"I wish to purchase a couple of white waiter's coats."

"Yes, sir," said the little salesman.

"What size do you wear?"

"Mr. Pomposus got red in the face spluttered and gurgled, and then as if fearing to trust himself to speech turned on his heel and strode from the place.
He left me at the next corner, and has avoided me ever since."—New York Sun.

An Experience at Hull House.
Even death itself sometimes fails to bring the dignity and serenity which one would fain associate with old age.
I recall the dying hour of one old Scotchwoman whose long struggle to "keep respectable" had so embittered her that her last words were gibes for those who were trying to minister to her. "So you came in yourself this morning, did you? You only sent things yesterday. I guess you knew when the doctor was coming. Don't try to warm my feet with anything but that old jacket that I've got there; it belonged to my boy who was drowned at sea thirty years ago, but it's warmer yet with human feelings than any of your confounded charity hot water bottles." Suddenly the harsh gasping voice was stilled in death, and I awaited the doctor's coming, shaken and horrified.—Jane Addams in American Magazine.

Empty Titles.

William Jennings Bryan once joked about our American fondness for titles.
"You all know of the colonel," he said, "who got his title by inheritance, having married Colonel Brown's widow? But I once met a general who got his title neither by inheritance, nor by service, nor by anything you could mention."

"General," I said to him, "how do you come by this title of yours, anyway?"

"Why, sir," said he, "I passed my youth in the flour trade and for twenty-seven years was a general miller."

"I know another titled man, Judge Greene."

"Are you, sir? I once asked him, 'a United States judge or a circuit court judge?'"

"I ain't neither," he replied. "I'm a judge of hock racing."

Fear.

Fear causes more disease than do microbes, more deaths than famine, more failures than poisons. It costs more than war, is always a failure and is never necessary, said a medical man.
Fear weakens the heart's action, induces congestion, invites indigestion, produces poison through decomposing foods and is thus the mother of auto-poisoning, which either directly causes or greatly aids in the production of quite 90 per cent of all our diseases.

Simplified Spelling.

"Why did you take Eluora away from school, Aunt Mahaly?" a lady asked her cook one day. Aunt Mahaly sniffed scornfully.

"Cause de teacher ain't satisfaction-ary tuh me, M's. Mahly. What you reckon she tell da chile viddydy? She low dat IV spell four when even a idjut 'ud know dat it spells ivy."

Not Strong Minded.

"Your wife, Clark, is, I should say,
a strong minded lady."

"There you would be wrong. I should rather describe her as brittle minded."

Brittle minded?

"Yes; she's been giving me pieces of her mind for years."

An Easy Arrangement.

Wife—Am I, then, never to have my name in anything? Husband—Certainly, dear. When we are both agreed you can have your way. When we differ I'll have mine."

An irritable man lies like a hedgehog rolled up the wrong way, tormenting himself with his own prickles.—E.
P. Hood.

A Felonious Libel.

The Expositor in its issue of last week, smarting over the defeat of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League delegates in the Sonoma precinct in the recent primary election, makes a baseless as well as senseless attack on the officers of election, all of whom are numbered among our oldest and most respected citizens. The language is libelous in the extreme and may yet lead its "editor" into serious trouble. The libelous article follows:

"The disgraceful tactics of some of the election officers in Sonoma last Tuesday by which the nominees of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League ticket were defeated by methods which would shame Tammany Hall, is being investigated by the members of the Republican Club and may result in several arrests. Two affidavits of electors who were present when the disreputable acts took place, have been made and will be submitted to District Attorney Lea. A systematic campaign to eliminate such tactics in the future will be waged by the Republican Club and the Men's League, and continued until it is possible to conduct an orderly and honest election here as in any other decent and reputable precinct."

The election officers referred to in the above slanderous article consisted of M. E. Cummings, Ed. Gillan, H. F. Bates and Chas. Ruffner, Democrats; L. H. Green, P. G. Keil, J. Valente and Jas. D. Modini, Republicans, and is a reflection upon each and every one of them.

In their behalf, as well as in defense of the citizenship of this town, we demand of the Expositor proof that the Lincoln-Roosevelt League delegates were defeated illegally or by unfair methods.

The soreheads simply didn't have the votes.

Firemen's Test of the Lewis Water System

As per announcement in another column it will be seen that a practical test of the Lewis water system for fire protection purposes will be made by the firemen on Second-street East opposite the Cleve home on Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. James Oliver who is associated with Mr. Lewis in his project will be present and address our townspeople on the merits of this new water system for fire and domestic purposes.

Pawnee Pow-wow No. II

Did you hear the Indians? No? Well, you should have your hearing tested. For they made plenty of noise. Twenty-eight bucks and squaws, commanded by our own Chief Spotted Horse, followed the trail in a hay wagon last Saturday night. Howling Harry as Scout, cleared the trail of all palefaces, except one and he refused to be cleared. In single file the braves advanced and laid him low. Ugh! After a fine hay ride Oregon Blacksnake pulled up at the Studley ranch, when the real doings began.

Chief Spotted Horse ordered the "Injuns" to run races. In these the bucks outdistanced the squaws. Endurance tests were tried and finally hide-and-go-seek. Say, but some of those squaws can run and climb and fall. Yes, certainly fall, particularly Woman-Who-Laughed. The tribe called on George and gave the tribal dance while he in turn recited a cute little poem having as its refrain "excuse me."

The dog feast was great recreation and lasted far into the night. The five new members were not initiated as Boy Chiefs was not present. They will be tortured at the next full moon. At a late hour all adjourned and planned to journey southward for the next pow-wow. SWAYING PINE.

Of Interest to Stockmen

The American Veterinary Medical Association is holding its Forty-seventh Annual Convention in the West for the first time in its history. One of the day's of its session will be given up to a clinic to be held on the 9th of September at Dr. Egan's second hospital, corner of Webster and Chestnut sts., San Francisco.

Some of the greatest surgeons known to America will perform operations in which they are celebrated. Dr. Bateman, D. V. S., of this place has been requested to locate cases of unusual interest, such as "stringhalt," poll evil, goitre, rovers, hernias, very large spavins, unusual tumors, quitters, fistulas, etc. The doctor will receive clinic material, which will be well cared for and returned. All expenses incidental thereto will be taken care of by the clinical committee.

Cases which may come under the various heads herein mentioned should be brought to Dr. Bateman's attention before September 4th. Dr. Bateman's address is Broadway, Sonoma.

Efficient Fire Test of Sonoma City Water Works Co.

Our readers will recall the recent efficient test of the plant and pressure of the Sonoma City Water Works Co., (the pioneer) whose source of supply is the famous Lachryma Montis Purity Spring. One of our town Trustees, having accompanied engineer Davis to the works, the alarm bell was rung, the fire apparatus was run out and lines of hose coupled on to the hydrants, two powerful streams being thrown over the roof of the Cleve store building on Broadway and Napa streets. At the same moment the electrically driven pumps were started at the spring, forcing water into the great tanks and so continuing until the close of the test, the gauge indicating at the conclusion one foot greater depth than at the beginning, thus affording ample proof that the Lachryma Montis Spring, besides being unrivaled for purity and abundance is equal to any emergency.

A Popular Candidate.

W. W. Felt, Jr., who is the unanimous choice of the Republicans of Sonoma county for the office of County Clerk, is one of the most popular candidates upon the ticket and a dead sure winner, as he has the united support of his party and not a few Democrats as well, who recognize in him a man peculiarly fitted for the position he seeks. Billy will poll a heavy vote down this way.

ESSAYED TO DO

A MONKEY STUNT

Demonstrative City Visitor Attempts to Illustrate Darwinian Theory and Comes to Grief.

J. Smith of San Francisco, who is taking a short vacation in this valley to escape the grime and dust of the metropolis and to get in touch with nature, met with a serious accident at "The Oaks" near Boyes. It happened this way: Smith, who is evidently a believer in the Darwinian theory, attempted to illustrate in a practical way the correctness of the idea Sunday evening before the admiring gaze of a number of fellow city visitors. Climbing into the upper branches of an oak tree adjoining the club house at "The Oaks," and obeying the "call of the wild" he essayed a flying leap through space onto the top of the club house porch. The distance was too great for Smith, however, and missing his mark he tumbled in a heap to the ground below and when picked up was in a dazed condition from numerous cuts and abrasions.

The injured man was assisted into the club house and Dr. Leix was summoned by phone to attend the practical demonstrator of a theory that most of the human species have endeavored to reason out with their brains, and it was found that although Smith had luckily escaped without broken bones, he had a badly lacerated face and one of his arms was painfully injured. He was patched up by the doctor but it will be some time before Smith will again be able to give his friends another practical demonstration of the agility of our animal ancestors who dwell in the tree-tops thousands of years ago.

The Cripple's Home

The Cripples' Home founded here a few years ago by Mr. W. T. Vaughan is attracting more attention abroad than at home, and in time will become one of the leading institutions of the valley.

The institution while being conducted as a Christian home will admit any cripple who desires to learn a useful trade and has sufficient use of at least one hand to be able to earn his own living, thus presenting him from becoming a public charge. Entirely helpless cripples, of course, are not admitted into this home.

Mr. Vaughan, the founder and manager of the Home, is himself a cripple. About five years ago, while working as a telegraph line-man in Florida, he came in contact with a network of live wires and 2080 volts of electricity passed through his body. He was terribly maimed and crippled for life. He lost a leg and the use of his right hand while his left hand and shoulder were partly and permanently disabled.

This crippled state would have discouraged almost any man, not so young Vaughan, who by his own exertions since the accident a number of years ago has raised sufficient money to buy thirteen acres of land in the eastern suburbs of this city for $5000, where he is conducting his institution.

Mr. Vaughan recently married a bright little eastern woman who is now assisting him in his work of making his venture a success and lifting a small mortgage upon it.

That these energetic people, who are almost strangers in our midst, will succeed in their laudable enterprise does not admit of a doubt if energy, perseverance and love for their work counts for anything.

WILL RETIRE FROM BUSINESS.

S. Schocken, Sonoma's Oldest and Most Successful Merchant, to Sell Out Owing to Ill Health

S. Schocken, for many years one of Sonoma's leading merchants, will retire from business next week. This step is taken on the advice of his physicians and the contents of his general merchandise store will be disposed of as a whole to the highest cash bidder next Tuesday at 11 A. M.

Mr. Schocken has been engaged in the general merchandise business in his present location for over forty years. His retirement, which has been looked for by his friends, will be greatly regretted by them. For years he has been one of Sonoma's most active and successful business men and his retirement will create a void in local mercantile circles that will not be forgotten for a long time.

Upright and square in all his business dealings Mr. Schocken has made a host of friends in this valley who will remember him always as the fairest merchant Sonoma has ever had.

Woman's Club Notes.

About forty ladies gathered in the parlors of the Sonoma Valley Woman's Club on Friday afternoon of last week for the regular social meeting. Quotations from Hawthorne were called for, many of the members responding. Mrs. R. P. Hill read a most interesting and instructive paper on a timely topic—conservation of our waterways. About two charming songs by Miss Helena Clewe an informal hour of chat was enjoyed, while tea was served by Mrs. A. J. F. Bateman.

Next Friday the regular business meeting will be held. It is proposed to devote considerable time during the coming year to educational matters.

Meehan and Papke Fight Ten Rounds to a Draw.

The boxing contest between Willie Meehan and Harry Papke, both clever and game young fighters of San Francisco, which was pulled off at Parente's El Verano Pavilion last Tuesday evening, was a mill that was to the liking of the most exacting of fight fans. It was a ten-round bout to decide the superiority of one over the other. For gameness, stubbornness, punching and fighting all the time, from start to finish, it was one of the grandest scraps ever pulled off here or anywhere else for that matter.

The young chaps were in the pink of condition and when they entered the ring it was easy to see that Meehan had the advantage over Papke in size and weight, but that the latter lacked in that respect he more than made up in cleverness, hitting powers, a readiness to take punishment and in the rough mix-ups he was a caution.

In the first round the honors were about even but slightly in favor of Meehan. So it continued to the seventh round, when Papke commenced to loom up as a possible winner in one of the greatest whirlwind fights ever held here. The eighth, ninth and tenth rounds were fiercely contested and the lads swapped punches that resounded and reverberated through the big hall, and when the end of the tenth round had been fought both youngsters were fighting fiercely, with Papke having the scrap a shade in his favor.

As Meehan had the best of the boxing bout in the first six rounds the referee declared the bout a draw, although it is the opinion of many who were at the ring side that had the scrap been continued another round or two Papke would have knocked out his more husky opponent.

A return match is being talked of between these clever fighters and if they come together again something will be doing sure.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION

The Two Factions of the Party Come Together and Adopt a Platform Which Ought to Harmonize Things

The Republican County Convention convened in Santa Rosa last Wednesday morning to adopt a platform, elect delegates to the State Convention and to choose a chairman and secretary of the new Republican County Central Committee. One hundred and ninety-seven delegates were present, representing every voting precinct in the county.

The convention was called to order by Dr. S. S. Bogle, chairman of the County Central Committee, with Secretary Felt at the desk. After Dr. Bogle had concluded his remarks the convention proceeded to nominate a chairman to preside over its destinies. C. F. Cleve of Petaluma placed in nomination Attorney W. B. Haskell of the same city from among the ranks of "regulars." John Peters, a farmer hailing from Lakeville, named Wm. J. Hickey, also of Petaluma, "an insurgent."

The result of roll-call gave Mr. Haskell 125 votes to Hickey's 72, and the former was declared the choice of the convention. This test of strength showed that it was largely dominated by the "regulars" who very generously made many concessions to the "insurgents" in the interest of harmony.

This concession was appreciated by the delegates for the most part, if we except delegate Bigelow of the Agua Caliente precinct, who butted in and endeavored to create a row by causing his name to be presented as a delegate to the State Convention in opposition to N. R. Knight, the unanimous choice of the San Luis-Sonoma delegations. He was roundly rebuked by the convention, however, which gave Mr. Knight 105 votes to Bigelow's 43.

Chairman Haskell, upon taking the gavel in hand, thanked the convention for the honor conferred upon him and urged harmony and party unity in the campaign, and declared his loyalty to the Republican party and its nominees.

After the adoption of a strong but conservative platform and pledging the Republican nominees its support, delegates to the State Convention were selected to the number of eleven. Twenty-one names were presented to the delegates with the following result:

L. A. Norton	119
R. L. Thompson	107
N. R. Knight	105
Rose Campbell	103
A. B. Lennon	98
W. B. Whitney	97
Dr. S. S. Bogle	95
Geo. P. Lovejoy	91
H. Hopkins	88
C. Burroughs	87
Victor Piez	80
W. B. McCoy	78
C. A. LeBaron	72
W. D. Sink	68
R. S. Truitt	55
R. M. Bonar	53
John Leslie	52
J. K. Bigelow	43
J. C. Bennett	39
P. B. Mothorn	27

The first eleven, having received the highest votes, were declared the duly elected delegates to the State Convention which meets in San Francisco next week.

A new County Central Committee was chosen with Joseph P. Berry as chairman and Ira D. Pyle as secretary.

Taking it all in all it was a most harmonious gathering of "stand-patters" and "insurgents," and for the nonce the delegates were Republicans notwithstanding the political scrap at the recent primaries. If any delegate had a knife in his bootleg we failed to observe it even among the Bigelow delegates who hailed from the classic precinct of Agua Caliente.

SHADOW LEGENDS

Zulus Believe the Bodily Shade Is the Future Spirit.

TAKING AWAY ONE'S SHADOW.

Why Some Races Are Forbidden to Look Into a Dark Pool of Water. The Way Donald McKay Managed to Escape the Clutches of the Devil.

That mysterious counterpart of a human being which lengthens with the day and disappears with the sun, to reappear more faintly with the rising of the moon, which we call a shadow, has always struck the imagination of man. It has played a prominent part in primitive superstition and in later folklore. Shadows or shades was the classical name or figure for the spirits of the departed which still remains in use.

This idea is not confined to civilized races. Among the Zulus the spirit is the shade. "Bishop Callaway, whose knowledge of Zulu beliefs and modes of thought was unrivaled, says that the Zulus connect the bodily shade with the future disembodied spirit. They believe that the shadow cast by the body will ultimately become the "tongue," or spirit, when the body dies, and they say that the long shadow shortens "as a man approaches his end and contracts into a very little thing. When they see the shadow of a man thus contracting, they know he will die. The long shadow goes away when a man is dead, and it is that which is meant when it is said, "The shadow has departed." There is, however, a short shadow which remains with the body and is buried with it. The long shadow becomes an ancestral spirit.

Identification of the shadow in any mysterious or spiritual way with the person whose body casts it, naturally leads to respect for the strange second self. To tread on the shadow of a chief is an insult to the chief himself. In the Institutes of Manu, the ancient Hindu law giver, the law runs:

"Let him not intentionally pass over the shadow of sacred images, of a natural or spiritual father, of a king, of a Brahmin who keeps house, or of any revered personage, nor of one who has just performed a sacrifice." There are traces of the survival of these primitive ways of regarding a man's shadow in the English country feeling that it is unlucky to cross the path of a newly married man as he leaves the altar; and in another rural belief that it is unlucky to cross the path of horses plunging when the sun is shining behind them.

Association between shadows and mirrored representations of the human form is obviously natural, so it is not surprising to find superstitions about the shadow mingled with widely scattered versions of the Narcissus legend. The story of the beautiful youth who became enamored of his own image, as he saw it represented in the water, and languished thereafter till he died, has its origin in the belief that trouble follows from beholding the watery image.

"Let him not look at his own image in water; that is a settled rule," commands Manu, the Hindu law giver.

The reason for the prohibition is to be found in the beliefs of man in a primitive state of civilization. The Melanesians of the Pacific, says a learned observer, say: "There is a stream in Saddle Island, or rather, a pool in a stream, into which if any one looks he dies; the malignant spirit takes hold upon his life by means of his reflection in the water." Some such idea as this was probably the root of the Narcissus legend.

The Zulus explain why it is ill to look into the water of a pool by a story of a great beast in the water which can seize the shadow of a man and when his shadow is gone a man no longer wishes to turn back, but desires to enter the pool. He goes in, dies, and is eaten by the great beast which inhabits it. So, says Bishop Callaway, "men are forbidden to lean over and look into a dark pool, it being feared that their shadow should be taken away."

There are other ways in which a man may lose his shadow. There was a temple of Jupiter in Arcadia which, if entered by those who were forbidden to do so, robbed them of their shadows.

In the north of Scotland there are some quaint legends of folk who lost this usual attendant. In Sutherland they tell more than one story of a wizard named Donald-Duival McKay. Donald went to a school in Italy where the black art was taught by the devil, who sat in the professor's chair, and at the end of each term claimed as his own the last scholar to depart. Breaking up at this academy was naturally a scramble, none wishing to be last.

On one occasion Donald was really the last, but just as the devil was about to seize him, the resourceful Donald pointed to his own shadow, which fell behind him, saying, "Take thou the hindmost!" Accordingly, his shadow was seized, while he himself escaped, and after his return to Scotland was never seen to have a shadow!

A companion illustration of "de'il tak the him'most," from Aberdeenshire, is a story of a witch helped laird watching his reapers, whose shadow was seized by Satan, and who was ever after shadowless. In literature Chaucer's famous tale of "Peter Schlemihl" is a well known example of the stories of the shadowless—New York American.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Keesling for Lieutenant-Governor

Now is the time to lay concrete sidewalks. See Trudgen, the stone mason, about it.

Warned.
"She told me that I might hope."
"Better look out! I've known girls to say that when they intended to accept a chap."—Puck

The Cavity.
Cholly: The dentist told me I had a large cavity that needed filling. Ethel: Did he recommend any special course of study?
